We've all learned that the world moves on, and below the border, things certainly are no different. As new facilities spring up, some fade away, and others just keep getting better. In addition new fisheries are discovered, and others change for one reason or another.

The staff at PCS (without the benefit of a crystal ball) has put together our best picks for your 2011 bucket list.

BAJA NORTE

Cedros Outdoor Adventure
(www.cedrosoutdooradventures.com)

Cedros Outdoor Adventures is the sole company authorized by the Mexican government to provide expeditions to Cedros and San Benitos islands. This remote-but-outstanding fishing and eco-tour adventure destination is now accessible year-round to anglers, adventurers, and photographers looking for an easy-to-reach, unique, exotic experience in a remote setting. Owner, Jose Angel Sanchez, says, "Clients are met in San Diego and comfortably shuttled to the Ensenada air facility. Then they are flown to Cedros Island in two hours (or other islands and coastal destinations of Baja), where anglers can literally step off the plane and begin exploring these remote waters of Cedros and San Benitos Islands, which are teeming with schools of yellowtail, giant black seabass, white seabass, grouper, big calico bass, as well as other species."

To alleviate client concerns about crossing the border on their own, all trips include complete transportation services, lodging, meals, 28-foot open pangas with experienced local skippers, and bilingual guides.

Cedros Outdoor Adventures is committed to providing safe expeditions to remote and unique destinations of Baja California while at the same time helping to protect these places by generating environmentally responsible economic opportunities in the local communities they visit.
